Failing in this, we put our cans regularly, front or back, as the case might be, merely to take them in

"At last on Tuesday, August 21, 1900, when most of us had given it up and were thinking of hunting up the old uncles and their ramshackle carts, a sudden noise was heard. Was it fire or the ambulance was described as driving along leisurely without stopping. The cart was bright green with the word 'ashes' written upon it in large red letters—a gorgeous display—but the parade flitted away and the vision of beauty had gone forever. Was he accompanied by a man on foot to take up the ashes? Was he to step down himself and take them? Were we to run after him with our cans, like so many milk maids after a reluctant cow? "Then the neighborhood consulted. Was this merely a parade to inaugurate the system, and to introduce the ash man, or was it to be called the collection in fact As it was announced that he would call once a week, we are breathlessly awaiting Tuesday, August 28, and we shall be ready on that day. Will that vision of green loveliness, that heavenly voice, and that celestial thunder ever reappear?

"I suppose that experience will teach us if we five long enough, as the card seems to have congealed en route."
Mr. Stutler, in commenting upon the matters mentioned in Mrs. Sheridan's letmatters mentioned in Mrs. Sheridan's letter to a Times reporter today, said that the facts in the case as made known through his inspector would go to show that there was no just cause of complaint. It would appear, he said, that she was replying to articles in the newspapers rather than finding fault with the ash-collection service. With reference to the lady who gave a collector a bottle of beer, Mr. Stutler said that in his opinion it would not be necessary to offer the men bribes to collect the ashes, and he thought wires to the residence of Lieut. H. H. Ward. The aplication in question was made July 11, and asked for permission to string two wires from Nineteenth Street and Wyoming Avenue to "Sunbury," the residence of Lieutenant Ward. F. W. Story, of the company writes that it is of great importance that Lieutenant Ward should have telephone service at his house, and he requests that the Commissioners reconsider the denial of the application made a month ago.

"I am informed." writes Mr. Story, "that Lieutenant Ward is the officer of the Navy Lieutenant Ward is the officer of the Navy Department who receives and transmits the cable messages and despatches to the officers of the Navy in China and elsewhere, and, of course, it is essential that he should be in constant touch with the Navy Department in the city. I have therefore to request that you will reconsider your refusal to grant the permit, and in this connection I would suggest that as Lieutenant Ward has had service within a very short distance of the house in which the short distance of the house in which the connection is proposed to be made, the granting of this permit would only involve a change from one residence to another, and not the installation of any additional telephone."

The request of Mr .Story was accomary of the Navy and from the Acting Secre-tary of the Navy and from the Acting Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, stating the fact that it is essential that the residence of Lieutenant Ward be connected by telephone with the Navy Department.

In reporting upon the request Walter C. Allen, the Electrical Engineer, says: "In view of the statement that this telephone connection is to be used by the Navy Department in connection with the receipt and transmission of cable messages be-ween the department and its officers in China, I would recommend that permission e granted to the Chesapeake and Potoms Telephone Company to change the location of its two wires, now running from Nine-teenth Street and Columbia Road to 1965 Kalorama Avenue, so that they may run from said corner along Wyoming Avenue to the residence of Lleutenant Ward." Endorsing the report of the Electrical Engineer, Capt. D. D. Gaillard, Acting Engineer Commissioner, states that inasmuch as this application has the sanction of the Navy Department, and that the establish-ment of the telephone in question is stat-ed by them to be necessary to facilitate the receipt and despatch of cablegrams rom China, it is, in his opinion, a public mergency which justifies the approval of he request. Captain Gaillard, therefore, ecommends that the facts in the matter
